What Democrats Say of Dr. Miller's Correspondence With the Administration.

RESCUED FROM A LIFE OF SHAME

A Lincoln Father Takes His Daughter From an Omaha Bagnio-An Inconstant Lover-Other Interesting Local News.

The "Good Doctor's" Letters.
The publication in Friday's BEE of the editorial correspondence from Washington in which the patronage methods of Dr. Miller were thoroughly exposed has created no little excitement in political circles, "I saw all those papers of which Mr Rosewater writes, when I was in Washington," said Mr. Chas. H. Brown yesterday, "and Dr. Miller can sweat out his unvailing wrath."

The reporter put a question to draw out the distinguished leader of "the slaughter house" democrats, and in question result has partisan terms.

"I know nothing of slaughter house nor packing house," interposed Mr. Brown. "I know that I am a democrat devoted to the best interests of the party

"But you understand, Mr. Brown, that those expressions, whether aptly or not express the divisions of the two factions in your party''

There are no two factions. There is a great and growing democracy in Ne-braska, and there is also, I regret to say, a mischief-making, malcontent faction identified under Boyd and Miller, who bid and bargain for a fee'sle constituency and defeat the party by their jealous discord. That's all the faction there is, discord. That's all the faction there is, but it hangs to the skirts of the party like a yelping our and does create a brief delay pending the hour when the dignity of the democracy shall assert itself and administer an effectual quietus. Yes, Dr. Miller is pretty mad, and his language is certainly violent and ruffianly. What alls him? When you can analyze the emotions of an insane man you will then be able to uncover the doctor's secret maladay."

you will then be able to uncover the doctor's secret maladay."

Mr. A. Swartzlander, who is identified among the working democrats who are sore to the eye of the great medical editor, was called upon. "Don't ask me to talk about Doc. Miller," said he; "the dear Doc. has taken a position so high above us common folks who get out on election day and work, that there is no election day and work, that there is no use of our straining at him. Ever since a democratic administration came in the doctor has been walking on stilts and is not to be accommodated at the theatre with less than the whole proseenium. I often wonder whether he gains any attention on his periodical flights to Washington. He certainly don't get much if the federal fruits go to show anything. I am glad that the proofs of his meddlesome interference are brought out to re-fute his denials. I tell you candidly, that I believe the democrats of Nebraska who do not subsist on politics do not care for any changes in the federal offices of the state. Lambertson tills the office of dis-trict attorney as capably as ever Pritchet could; Post is as competent a collector of internal revenue as Crawford could possibly be, and Robinson seems as well qualified for his position as though the doctor had not flung his billingsgate against him."

Mr. D. H. Goodrich, of the waterworks company, who is known among the loyal but undemonstrative democrats, was ap-company, who is known among the loyar but undemonstrative democrats, was approached. He expressed his severe displeasure that the leaders should compromise the party by their factional quarrels and denied that he was identified with either side. He deprecated Dr. Miller's attempt to drive out the state surveyor, because the doctor was actuated to his efforts by partisan malice alone. He was amused that the patronage correspondence of the doctor gave the lie to his denial of interference in the matter of federal appointments.

Mr. James Creighton was much more anxious to talk about street paying than to deal in politics, but he laughed when the Bee's editorial correspondence was mentioned. "You can put me down as a slaughter-packing house democrat—both, you see. I am for the side that is in the right every time and am bound to neither. I have to laugh at the way the good docthave to haugh at the way the good does for fell down in trying to get out of his scrape, and the expose of his letters in the BEE must nettle him. I confess I don't quite like his attitude. He had better been straight out, and now that he is tripped up and light is thrown on the question he could squeal with a little less

A number of other gentlemen were seen, but at this quiet season of the year nearly all begged off from print, and with the few above in hand, deference was shown their requests. The expres-sions all are that Dr. Miller has betrayed himself to ridicule, if nothing worse, in the eyes of both his own and other polit-

WANTED TO SAVE HER.

A Lincoln Father Who was Made Happy by Finding His Daughter. "No, sir, I will not go back with you, I don't want to live at home. And I wont, so you might as well go along without me!"

These words were addressed to her father by a young lady yesterday afternoon in one of the parlors of a well known sporting establishment on lower Douglas street. The speaker was Miss Amie Rentz, the listener her father, a resident of Lincoln.

Yesterday Mr. Rentz came into police headquarters, seemingly in deep distress, and asked that an officer be detailed to his assistance for a few moments. He said that his daughter had been seduced by a traveling man and had run away with him from her Lincoln home to Omaha, where she had entered upon a sporting career. He had reason to believe, he declared, that she was in the house conducted by Annie Wilson on Douglas street. "I want to save my girl from ruin," he said to the jailor, "before it is too late" and I want you to help me.

Officer Turnbull accompanied him to the place indicated, and sure enough the missing lamb was found there, under the name of "Miss Dora." She loudly proname of "Miss Dora." She foundly pro-tested that she would not accompany her father home, but upon being ordered to leave the house by Officer Turnbull, don-ned her wraps and started for the train with her sad-hearted parent. Before quitting the company of the policeman, she defiantly informed him that she would run away and come back to Omahe at her first opportunity.

Mr. Rentz is a poor, hard-working, espectable man, with a wife and eight bildren to support. Amic, his eldest, is San 7 years of age. She is a headstrong, willfur, wayward miss, and has been of rate years a source of great anxiety and rouble to her parents.

HE JILTED HER. After Furnishing a Home a Young Man Loses His Courage. Passengers on the overland train which came into Omaha about three months ago might have noticed a lady traveling alone. Young and possessing unusual attractions both in face and form, she could not fail of being admired by all who came in contact with her. Arrivng at the Union depot she left the train and went to the home of a friend living not far away. Nothing remarkable in this, you will say. True enough, but there is a sequel to follow. Some time prior to the opening of this story a young man employed in the west bound freight department at the transfer, under Burns, rented a cottage on Tenth street and spared neither money nor pains in furnishing it up sumptuously and with all the conveniences of a well organized home. The young man's friends surmised, and in fact he made no secret of it, that he was soon to become an apostate from the ancient order of bachelors. On the day following the opening it, that he was soon to become an apostate from the ancient order of bachelors. On the day following the opening of this story the young man in question received a dainty perfumed note from his fiancee, informing him that she had arrived in Omaha, sooner than expected, with the idea of giving him a pleasant little surprise, and that she was stopping at a friend's house where she would be pleased to have him call. As the reader will surmise, the young lady was the same who came in on the train the night before. The young man called in the evening, but instead of greeting his betrothed in the yum-yum-sugar cream-ain't-we-happy way, he sat coldly in one corner, looking as glum and sour as a disappointed office seeker. O, do tell me, Dick, are you sick! No. Any of your friends dead? No. Has your house with all that nice furniture you wrote about burned up? No. O. Dick, you must tell me what troubles you so and what makes you act so strange.

The young man arose, walked to the front door and placing his hand on the knob, said: "Since our engagement I have been thinking the matter over and have made up my mind that you and I can mayor be man and wife." The door have made up my mind that you and I can never be man and wife." The door opened and closed, and he was gone. Brushing away a few tears, the young girl, who had been so cruelly jitted, packed away the wedding garments that had been fashioned with exquisite taste when her hopes were high and the future seemed bright, and resolved to live and

The young man who figures in this romance, in a manner by no means creditable to himself, has quite a history of his own. About three years ago he went back te Canada, near his old home, with the avowed purpose of marrying a young lady to whom he had been be-trothed for some time, but returned without her. He has not given any reasons for jilling his last conquest, but one reason may be that the young lady was educated a Catholic, though not a very strong adherant to "mother church," while he is a protestant, or as his friends claim a natural born crank. Instead of a wife he has a chum, a fellow clerk, at the transfer, with whom he shares his home on Tenth street. It is said that he occasionally calls on the young lady, and might marry her even yet if he could get his courage up to the right

AMUSEMENTS.

The Minstrel Entertainment-Close of the Vincents' Engagement. McNish, Johnson & Slavin's minstrels gave two performances Saturday at the Boyd to crowded houses. As this was their second visit to Omaha this season their reception proved the appreciation in which their entertainment is held by the people. From the "first part" until the tall of the curtain on the closing farce the audience was kept continually laughing and the applause was frequent and uproarous. Omaha certainly treated the company well, and the company returned the compliment.

The Vincents conclude their engagement at the People's this evening, much to the regret of the many admirers which they have made during their two weeks' stand in this city. The company is a most excellent one, and it has been demonstrated beyond cavil that good actors at the People's will receive the support of the public. The Vincents should receive an ovation on their last appearance

Our Boys in Blue.
Last night the W. C. T. U. Buckingham hall was filled with a most attentive audience. The song service was a feature. Messrs. Gratton and Hubeson led with their usual fine ability. Both the gentlemen sang solos which were listened to eagerly. Dr. Womersley made an earnest prayer, and by request Miss Blanch Sylvester sang a solo, "King Bibbler's Army," the chorus being rendered more beautiful by the voices of Mr. Hubeson and Miss Millie Sylvester. Mr. Holt struck straight from the shoulder and laid the blame of the liquor traffic upon the people. If the voters didn't want saloons, there would be neither saloons nor drunkenness. He spoke earnestly to "the boys" to come to the W. C. T. U. Buckingham home in hours of temptation in overcoming this appetite. Here you will ever find a welcome and tender sympathy and strength.
The entire lecture was good, and again
the line of boys took up the line of march towards the pledge desk and donned the

Yesterday morning the Reform club assembled at the Buckingham and quite a number attended in a body the Bap-tist church. At 4 o'clock the meeting was enthusiastic and interesting.
To-night Mr. Holt will deliver his famous lecture, "Chicago by Gaslight," or "Behind the Screens." On account of the heavy expense of Mr. Holt's meetings an admittance fee of 25 cents will be charged. The christain people are especially urged to come and help the cause.

At the meeting on Saturday evening five nationalities were represented and took part in the exercises. At an early hour the club adjourned to the dinning hall, where a bountiful supper had been spread for them by the ladies of the W. C. T. U. After the inner man had been satisfied, a social time was passed, and the members and their wives went home declaring that they had passed a very pleasant evening. The Musical Union Concert.

The fourth concert of the Sunday series of the Musical Union orchestra drew a good sized audience to the opera house last evening. These concerts fast evening. These concerts are gradually becoming more and more popular, and certainly deserve to secure enough patronage to warrant their being made a permanency.

The programme on the whole was very good. Two or three of the pieces were rather old, to be sure. But they were so well rendered that the delicacy of execuwell rendered that the delicacy of execu-tion balanced any objections of antiquity that might be urged against them. The selection from the Black Hussars in the first part, the overture, Mill on the Rock, by Reissiger in the second, and Figuro's Wedding in the third were perhaps the features of the concert, eliciting well deserved applause.

It was noticeable that the element of light music in the selections more largely predominated over the classical than on any previous evening. This circumstance, so far from lessening the pleasure of the average listener, rather added

Next Sunday evening, on the occasion of Prof. Steinhauser's benefit, an especially fine programme is promised.

An Additional Attraction.

The managers of the Exposition building vesterday concluded arrangements with the famous Swedish Quartette club to appear at the grand opening of that structure next Thursday. The club will be present both afternoon and evening and render some of their choicest music, which will certainly be a rich treat to all who attend.

The meetings held last week at the new Saunders street mission have been very interesting and will be continued each evening of this week.

PROFESSOR NUMBER TWO. Strassburger's Domestic Successor Goes to the lowa Pen. The following is from the Des Moines

The following is from the Des Moines Leader of February 11:

"Yesterday afternoon, at Winterset, Judge McHenry overruled the motion for a new trial in the case of the state vs. B. F. Nadal, and pronounced upon defendant a sentence of two years and a half in the penitentiary. Thus has this lecherous fellow, whose successful masquerading as a smooth, guileless gentleman made him famous as a rainer of innocent women through this and other states, at last received attention from the law. As a preacher, lecturer, select reader, etc., etc., Nadal, during the earlier part of his career through lowa, proved something of a hit—at least to his one sought for extent, that of getting two, three, five or more "propoinent" Isdies smitten on his shape, soft vole, and dodging eye. And probably no fewer than lifty representatives of the female class named know and are known and are known to know the fellow to a degree of intimacy such as must have thrown an exceedingly giddy reflection from off the bolished brass of Nadal's cheek out into the eyes of their immediate friends. But it is not for such women that public wrath rose in defense, for the honest, simple-minded two or three whom the fellow married one after another, in quick succession, took their savings, their all, and then skipped—for such pranks it is that this bortion of the state grew most uncomfortably warm. The case that tripped him, though, was that pushed by the father of Olive Loftus, a handsome woman of petite form and highly educated lady of Winterset. The old gentleman is a man of means, and means get away with meanness any day in the week, especially when backed by mature spunk and what's more—an outraged family name."

And thereby hangs a tale. The above mentioned fellow, Prof. B. F. Nadal, is well known in Omalia, He occupied himself as a humorous lecturer through this state and Iowa, and made his headquarters in this city. While here he Leader of February 11:

himself as a humorous lecturer through this state and Iowa, and made his head-quarters in this city. While here he found lodgings in the apartments of Mrs. Charles F. Strassburger, on the second floor of the Dodge street Turkish bath house. It was he, beyond all preadventure, who instigated the divorce proceedings of Mrs. S. against her truant husband. Certain it is that he has taken the place vacated by the old professor and is installed in the domestic establishment which was formerly Strassburger's. Mrs. S., as has previously been stated, is an invalid in wretched physical condition and beyond the further enjoyments of this life's pleasures. She has an attachment of some peculiar sort for the man, but he in turn only too evidently loves but her money. She has evidently loves but her money. She has supplied him with funds during the whole of the litigation in Iowa, which terminated in his imprisonment, but, to the woman's little credit, it should be said that he represented to her that he was fighting a libel suit against the Des Moines Register and she did know the real character of the prosecution. The man was last in town this day a week ago, out on bail pending the hearing of a motion for a new trial. Whether the authorities have him now or whether he has skipped out is not known.

LAUER INDICTED

For Murder in the First Degree-Quiet Grand Jury Work.

At a few moments after 12 o'clock Saturday the grand jury filed out of their rooms on the second floor of the county building, walked solemuly into the office of Clerk Ijams, and deposited a small bundle of papers. The usual injunetions of secrecy were passed, and the members of the body dispersed for their

An adjournment was taken until Wednesday to enable District Attorney Estelle to bring before the body the cases of the burglars, Tracy, Boylan and

The three indictments filed with the clerk are not yet ready for publication, at least so say Clerk Ijams and District Attorney Estelle. The latter, when first approached about the matter by a reporter, denied that any indictments were returned by the grand jury, but afterwards "fessed up" and admitted that he had perverted the truth. "The fact is," "the grand jury has brought in some indictments, but as yet the accused have not been arrested, and nothing can be given to the papers about the cases until they are captured."

The indictment against Lauer for some reason is also being withheld. The BEE has taken some pains to investigate the matter, and is in a position to state au-thoritatively that a bill of indictment has been drawn up, charging John W. Lauer with murder in the first degree. The review of the case in the grand jury room has been very exhaustive, and it is said that new and important points of evidence have been brought out, which do not tend to strengthen Lauer's side of the

The bribery charges against Marshal Cummings have been sifted by the grand jury and found utterly groundless. As stated in the BEE Thursday no indictment against the marshal has been or will be returned.

A Pleasant Affair.

The Valentine sociable given Saturday evening, by the ladies of Seward street M. E. church, at the residence of Mrs. J. E. Newman, 1208 Campbell street, was a most enjoyable affair. About 150 friends were present to contribute to the pleasure of the evening, and by the manner in which missives of cupid were kept flying around it was easy to see that all enjoyed themselves. Miss Adie Robinson and Jewel McCune was attired in fancy dress to represent Uncle Sam's mail carriers, and they were busy most of the time. Among those present were noticed Rev. C. W. Savidge, Deputy County Clerk Anch-Moedy and wife, C. R. Davidson and wife of the B. & M. headquarters,

Pushing the Bill. President Max Meyer, of the board of trade, Saturday received the following letter from Congressman A. J. Weaver: Washington, Feb. 9, 1886-Max Meyer, Esq., President Board of Trade, Omaha, Neb.—My Dear Sir: In reply to yours have to say that I will do all I can to get the bill you call attention to considered at an early day. The committee has agreed to make a favorable report. Very truly.

A. J. WEAVER.

The bill referred to is that to make

Omaha a port of immediate transportation allusion to which has already been made in these columns. It has already passed the senate, and will probably be put through the house without any trouble. President Meyer, at any rate, appears to be confident that the bill will pass and its provisions put into effect at an early day Fell in Convulsions.

A young Swede girl fell in convulsions about 9 o'clock last evening at St. Mary's avenue and Eighteenth street, and was carried into Parr's drug store. Dr. Leisenring was summoned and endeavored to quiet her by giving her chloroform, but the powerful drug failed to produce the desired effect. The girl's convulsions were terrific, it requiring the utmost power of three men to control her. A hack was finally summoned and she was local to the produce of the summoned and she was the summoned and endeavored to produce the summoned and endeavored to quiet her su conveyed to her home on South Twentysecond street, where she gradually recovered. Her brother and sister, who were with her when she fell, said she was subject to the attacks quite frequently.

An Indefinite Telegram. A telegram signed John Fist was re

OMAHA EXPOSITION BUILDING.

The Magnificent Building to Be Opened on Thursday.

History and Description of the Pile-Its Originators and the Programme of Opening Exercises.

The exposition building on Capitol avenue, Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets, of which a cut is herewith presented, is one of the best of the recent evidences which Omaha has given of her advancement toward metropolitan energy and enterprise. It originated with a few citizens, one of whom, I. W. Miner, early last spring secured the site from A. J. Poppleton. Later on Max Meyer and Fred Gray were enlisted in the enterprise. Subsequently the following leading business men became interested and formed the charter members of the Omaha Exposition Building a sociation: B. F. Smith of Boston, Wm. Wallace, J. N. McShane, A. L. Strang, C. E. Squires, Messrs, Dewey & Stone, L. Mendelssohn, and J. H. Wakefield. The membership way then increased by T. L. Kimball, J.

of $00,000. On the fronts mentioned there are six stores, well lighted and ventilated, which are to be rented, one on Fifteenth and Capitol avenue having been secured by Max Meyer. There are large entrances on all the fronts. On the right of that on Capitol avenue will be the offices of the association and ladies cloak and toilet rooms. The latter are commo-modious and equal to any demand that may be made upon them. Rooms for gentlemen will be on the left of the same doorway. Immediately inside each entrance are broad capacious stairways leading to the gallery. The area of the floor is 17,060 square feet, the dimensions of the same being 80x220 feet. This will enable more than 1,000 people to dance at one time. The floor joists are laid in pounded brick and mortar. Upon these are laid white pine boards, and over this is laid the upper surface consisting of strips of hard nuple 24 inches in width. These are planed and olled and make a most model floor for all purposes. The gallery extends all around the building and is twenty feet wide, and from it eight flights of stairs lead to the ground floor. The roof is supported by trusses, so strongly built that, where a deflection of six inches was allowed, one not more than one-half an inch has been discovered. This is a credit to the builder, M. T. Murphy, evelose work on the entire building has been most satisfactory. will be next Thursday, when the structure—shall be opened to the public, the building will be shown to be in every way worthy of the enterprise and the object which has called it into existence. The design was drawn and the plans made by Architect Mendelssohn. The beauty, the dimensions and the adaptability of the structure speak in eloquent praise of the work of this gentleman.

The building has a frontage on Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets of 120, and Capitol avenue of 266 feet. It is built of brick, of which it contains 1,000,000, and of these 275,000 are under ground sup-

BASEBALL PROSPECTS.

Kansas City Withdraws from the National League-The Northwestern League. Mr. C. J Canan received Saturday from

Ted Sullivan the following telegram which appears to materially change the baseball situation: MILWAKEE, Wis., Feb. 12.-Milwaukee is going to take Kansas City's place. Northwestern league is going to go on. T. P. SULLIVAN. That is to say Kansas City is going to withdraw from the National league in which she was recently allowed representation, and Milwaukee is to be the lucky town. And the Northwestern league scheme, which has been held in abeyance for the past month, will be revived and pushed.

The exact process by which this withdrawal of Kansas City from the National league was accomplished is not as yet apparent. It is regarded as probable, however, that the city on the Kaw sold out her franchise in the $5,000 or $6,000, just as Buffalo did to Detroit The terms by which Kansas City was to be allowed representation in the National league were that $5,000 guaran-tee money that the club would be main tained to the end of the season should be deposited with the secretary, and that a stock company with $25,000 paid up capital should be formed. This latter step has only been partially taken, and the club which was intended for the National league will doubtless be put in the field admission. "Now, that the Kansas City people have determined to put a club in the Northwestern league," he remarked, "we can secure an organization of at least six clubs, which will be strong and able to make money. The cities which will probably be represented will be St.

Joseph, Kansas City, Omaha, Duluth, Minneapolis and St. Paul, all of them good, lively towns, and able to support base ball. The only small town is St.
Joseph, although they support base ball
there well. All of the cities are comparatively close together and in no case will a club have a long distance to jump. On the other hand, the very objection to the formation of the Western league, with Denver, Pueblo, Lincoln, Omaha, Topeka, Leavenworth and St. Joe, would be that the long distances to be Paversed would destroy all the profits. In addition, most of the towns are too small to support a first class club."

In Ireland's Cause. There was a good attendance at the meeting of the Irish National League at Cunningham's hall yesterday afternoon. President McShane presided, and stirring addresses were made by John P. Sutton, of Lincoln, the recently elected secretary of the National League, and C. J. Smith, of this city. The remarks of both the gentlemen were based on the condition of affairs in Ireland, and they strongly exhorted all Irishmen to unite in the sup-port of Parnell and for the good of their

The celebration of St. Patrick's day-March 17—was discussed, and it was re-solved to invite Patrick Egan, ex-president of the league, to act as president of the day. The joint committee of the league and the A. O. H. appointed at the last meeting to have charge of the celebration, will hold a meeting next Sunday and perfect all arrangements for the affair. It will undoubtedly be a grand success, and assurances have been re-ceived that Mr. Egan will accept the in-vitation to be the presiding officer.

"The O. T. Social" is the title given to aprivate dancing party to be given in Metropolitan half next Wednesday evening. About seventy invitations have been issued and a royal good time is assured the favored ones.

Gray, vice president; I. W. Miner, secretary; Wm. Wallace, treasurer; directors, Max Meyer, Fred W. Gray, Wm. Wallace, John A. McShane, John A. Wakefield.

Work upon the building was commenced in July, and continued, without intermission till the present time, with so much skill, energy and success that, on next Thursday, when the structure shall be opened to the public, the building will be used.

Six thousand feet of radiating sur face have been introduced by A. L. Strang. Through this steam will be sent by two steel boilers of 45-horse power. This will heat the stores by the Haxton process to 70° and the building to 60°, when it is stand will be placed in the middle of the floor, and the acoustic properties of the hall will enable every note to be heard in the building, and should these fail, elective lights will be used.

The building will be opened next Thursday afternoon with a public rel carsal for day afternoon with a public rel carsal for women and children. In the evening a magnificent promenade concert by sixty musicians will be given with 1 ie appended programme. This will introduce Mrs. Martin Cahn to the public of Omaha.

The citizens of Omaha should turn out in thousands to these entertainments, to show their appreciation of the Exposition building association's enterprise. St. Paul recently invested $25,000 in an ice building which will have disappeared in a month. Our building will stand for years. Our people certainly ought to spend $5,000 on this entertainment. If they do it would be an encouragement to the association and encourage them to other achievements.

Beating His Mistress.

John Miller, a gambler, was arrested at an early hour yesterday morning for assault and battery and taken to the central police station. The complaint was made by Edna Kirk, a young woman who lives with Miller, that he had most shamefully abused her, and when they retired he beat and pounded her until she could stand it no longer and summoned the police to her aid.
